"Some Dramatic Demonstrations in Physics" will be presented free of charge at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the El Camino College Campus Theater. Julius Sumner Miller, physics instructor at the college, will utilize apparatus used on his television program each Sunday morning at 11 a.m. in conducting the special lecture demonstration. Miller's program, "Science and Its Magic," is designated to stimulate curiosity in a field "which some students think of as being dull."

IN THE CAMPUS Theater program, Miller will lecture and demonstrate extemporaneously "as the spirit moves." The college physics teacher has served as technical adviser and consultant to Walt Disney Productions and is on call as a technical consultant to the legal profession in courts of law. MILLER'S BOOK, "Demonstrations in Physics," will be published soon by Addison-Wesley Co.

Internationally recognized as an authority in his field, Miller will lecture this summer on "Men and Events of Science Commemorated on Postage Stamps" at the University of Arizona. Taking a sabbatical leave next fall, Miller will lecture on the same subject in leading European universities. "Buzz" Paul of Waccabuc, N. Growth of Trees, Shrubs Most Important for City—Miller

"Growth of trees, shrubs, and grass in an expanded system of neighborhood parks is more of an issue today with the people of Torrance than growth of population," City Council Candidate Ken Miller said this week. As a member of the Torrance Planning Commission, Miller said he has become increasingly aware of a change in the public's thinking.

"Only a few years ago, a record-breaking census of the city in Los Angeles County was all-important to Torrance. The people here have changed. Now they want more parks and more recreation facilities for themselves and their children," he said. THE CITY COUNCIL must be aware of this trend and place greater emphasis on parks and recreation at budget time if it is going to keep in step with the people of Torrance whom it represents, Miller said. "As a native son, I have been an interested participant in Torrance's growth from a small city somewhere southwest of Los Angeles into a metropolitan center. I know this sudden growth has cost all citizens a large share of their tax dollar. Now, I believe they want to slow down, or pause, and use some of these tax dollars for the improvements which will directly benefit them and their families," he pointed out.

Sound expansion of our parks and recreation system is a good investment for Torrance, Miller declared. "It is impossible to measure their value to our children as a hedge against juvenile delinquency and its cost in dollars and misery."

IT IS EQUALLY impossible to measure their value to our citizens who built this community. "If someone insists that parks and recreation be judged from purely practical standpoint, these serve as an attraction to new industries and businesses which seek an area to build a building. They look for a home for their employees, as well; and the parks and recreation program a city offers is judged before the decision is made to locate at a particular site," Miller said.

"I believe the citizens of Torrance will express their desire for more parks and more recreation by their votes during the coming election. I sincerely hope they will do so by supporting candidates who will speak out strongly on the City Council for more growth—on trees, shrubs, and grass in more parks."
